TOTAL POPULATION, INCREASE, AND DISTRIBUTION.

Population of the state.—North Dakota, with boundaries as at present, was organized as a state from a part of Dakota territory and was admitted to the Union in November, 1889. (The two Dakotas, which were admitted by the same act of Congress, were the thirty-ninth and fortieth states to enter the Union.) Dakota territory was organized in 1861, and at that time included the region now constituting the greater part of Montana and nearly half of Wyoming, but the organization of Idaho territory in 1863 and Wyoming territory in 1868 reduced the area of Dakota territory to substantially that of the present states of North and South Dakota.

According to the Fourteenth Census, taken as of January 1, 1920, the population of North Dakota is 646,872, which represents an increase of 69,816, or 12.1 per cent, since 1910. During the same period the population of the United States increased by 14.9 percent. The following summary shows the population of North Dakota from 1890 to 1920, inclusive, together with the number and per cent of increase for each decade, in comparison with the per cent of increase for the United States as a whole. The population of that part of Dakota territory which now constitutes the state of North Dakota was 36,909 in 1880 and 2,405 in 1870.

Counties.—North Dakota has 53 counties, 4 of which (Golden Valley, Grant, Sioux, and Slope) have been organized from parts of 2 others (Billings and Morton) since 1910. Of the remaining 47 counties whose boundaries have remained unchanged, 36 show increases and 11 decreases as compared with 1910. (See Table 1.) Because of the changes in area due to the organization of the new counties it has been necessary, in preparing the maps on page 3, showing rates of increase or decrease in total and rural population, to combine Grant, Morton, and Sioux Counties and to combine Billings, Golden Valley, and Slope Counties.

Density of population.—The total land area of the state is 70,183 square miles. The average number of inhabitants to the square mile in 1920 is 9.2 (see Table 1), as against 8.2 in 1910 and 4.5 in 1900.

Minor civil divisions.—The political units into which the counties are divided are collectively termed "minor civil divisions." The counties of North Dakota are made up of 2,119 primary divisions, comprising 1,268 civil townships, 297 unorganized townships (including 5 for which no population was reported in 1920), 212 school townships, 32 school districts, 18 election precincts, 92 cities, 198 villages, and 2 towns. The only secondary divisions are Hamilton and Neche villages, in Pembina County, each of which forms a part of the township in which it is located. In addition to these minor civil divisions, there are in the state 2 Indian reservations—Fort Berthold and Turtle Mountain—which, although independent of the county organizations, have been treated as forming parts of the counties in which located. (See Table 2.)

Cities.—North Dakota has 92 cities, of which Fargo, with a population of 21,961, is the largest. (See Tables 3 and 4.)

The following summary shows, for each city having 5,000 or more inhabitants in 1920, the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the number and per cent of increase during the preceding decade:

Urban and rural population.—The Census Bureau defines urban population as that residing in cities and other incorporated places having 2,500 inhabitants or more, and rural population as that residing outside such incorporated places.

The following summary presents, for the last three censuses, figures showing the urban and rural population of the state distributed among places grouped according to specified limits of population. The classification for each census is based upon the population of the various places as shown by the returns of that census. Consequently the territory comprised within any one class of cities or that designated as urban or as rural does not remain fixed, because any given place may, through the growth or the decline of its population, pass from one class to another at successive censuses. The proportion of the population of North Dakota living in places of 2,500 or more increased from 7.3 per cent in 1900 to 11 per cent in 1910 and to 13.6 per cent in 1920.

TABLE 1.—AREA AND POPULATION OF COUNTIES: 1870 TO 1920.

In computing the increase from 1890 to 1900 for certain counties, the population of Indian reservations in 1900 has been deducted from the total population of the county in order to make it comparable with the total for 1890, which does not include the population of Indian reservations. The deductions thus made for the several counties are as follows: Benson, 1,268; McLean, 938; Mercer, 40; Morton, 2,208; Rolette, 2,393.]
